CO-OPERATION OF TEACHER, PUPIL ASKED

L. W. Reese, State High School Supervisor, Addresses 140 Teachers

PROGRAM IS GOOD

Ashville Proves Fine Host to Educators

Stressing a closer combination between teacher and pupil, Hon. L. W. Reese, state high school supervisor of the state department of education, spoke to 140 Pickaway-co teachers in one of the finest meetings held in the county, at Ashville high school Saturday.

This was the first teachers' meeting of the year and was declared to be most profitable by D. L. Buchanan, superintendent of county schools.

Speaking on the problems of a class-room teacher, Mr. Reese listed five points, which he said he thought were valuable in teaching. 1—Know your pupils; 2—Know your subject matter; 3—Modern methods; 4—Paying attention to details; 5—Teach citizenship.

"By following these simple points you will be surprised to note the progress that can be made in your class-room," he said.

Preceding a luncheon, Supt. Buchanan spoke to the group, explaining age and schooling and teachers' certificates. He urged that there be oral and silent reading in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades.

Dr. A. E. Wagner of Ohio university, who will conduct an extension course at Corwin-st school building here, gave a 10-minute talk on the benefits of extension work.

SUPERINTENDENTS SPEAK

Three county school superintendents spoke at a luncheon program. Lunch was served in the Ashville high school gymnasium.

Using as his subject, "What Will We Do With those Unable to Finance Themselves in School," Supt. Harold Bowers of Williamsport, proposed a used book exchange and free lunches for the Accident or Murder?

Held in Belton, Texas, charged with the murder of his stepdaughter, Doris Yarbrough (top), who was burned to death in his garage, Carl Yarbrough (lower) asserts that the girl's death was the result of a tragic accident. He claims that Doris was watching him use a blow torch when her clothing caught fire. He caught up a bucket of what he thought was water and dashed it over her, only to discover to his horror that the pail contained gasoline.

JAIL SUSPECTS IN BANK THEFT

Two New Lexington Men Questioned; One Wounded Trying To Get Away.

NEW LEXINGTON, Sept. 19.—Captured after a gun battle during which one was wounded, two suspects were to be questioned by Union-co officials here today in connection with the daring $10,000 robbery last week of the Richwood Banking Co., at Richwood, O.

The two suspects, who gave their names as Joseph Helwig, 26, of New Lexington, and Louis Vernon, 29, were seized last night by Perry-co authorities who trapped them as they were driving away from a restaurant in Junction City near here.

ONE WOUNDED

Helwig attempted to shoot his way to liberty, officials said. He was felled, however, by a bullet from an officer's gun which struck him in the left leg.

Lodged in jail here, Helwig and Vernon were to be questioned by Union-co officials regarding the Richwood robbery.

Suspicion was directed against the pair when Theodore Gordon, Junction City marshal, recognized their automobile as fitting the description of the one used by the bandits who held up the Richwood bank.

Gordon notified Sheriff Cliff Wilson, who rushed to Junction City immediately with a deputy, Clyde Marshall. They arrived just as the two suspects were preparing to drive away.

Blocking the suspect's automobile with their machine, the officers got out of the car. Helwig turned and ran, firing two shots at the officers. Neither found a mark and Wilson and Marshall returned the fire. One of the shots struck Helwig in the left leg. Vernor offered no resistance.

WIFE QUESTIONED

Also in the car were Vernon's brother, Arthur, the latter's wife and their three small children. Arthur and his wife were questioned by the authorities and released.

Sheriff Wilson said he discovered a set of Michigan automobile license plates and a revolver in the suspected automobile. Both Vernon and Helwig were carrying revolvers.

The two suspects, according to Sheriff Wilson, have served prison sentences in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Mayor Kept Busy Handing Out Sentences

Courts of the city were being kept busy Monday with a trial beginning in Judge Joseph W. Adkins' court in the statutory case of the State against Newell McNeal of Williamsport, several persons arrested for intoxication, one man cited for driving with no lights and another in jail for stealing a basket of potatoes.

The McNeal case, scheduled to begin at 9 a. m., was delayed until 1 p. m. because of the funeral of Frederick L. Fickardt. The long task of obtaining a jury suitable to both sides was to begin at that time. Judge Adkins Monday morning notified J. M. Borror and W. D. Heiskell, the jury commission, to be prepared to draw more names for jury duty as the panel was expected to be exhausted. Each side will have four peremptory challenges after the box has been filled.

McNeal was indicted on information furnished the grand jury by Margaret Pontius of Deercreek-twp. She with her father, Sam Pontius, and Dr. Glen D. Sheets have been subpoenaed by the state as witnesses. Besides Mr. McNeal the defene, conducted by Tom A. Renick and C. A. Weldon, has called Harry F. Dunlap.

Garner Wins "Death Race" With Mother

Democratic Nominee Drops All Plans As Mother Nears Death

DETROIT, Tex., Sept. 19.—Winner of a race against death, Speaker John N. Garner today remained in constant attendance at the bedside of his aged mother, Mrs. Sarah Jane Garner, critically ill in her home.

The 82-year-old mother of the Democratic vice-presidential nominee was in a state bordering on coma and her physicians expected the end momentarily. Early today the doctors announced their patient was "gradually sinking."

Speaker Garner, dropping all plans for a campaign speaking tour to rush to his mother's bedside from Washington, arrived here late yesterday. Immediately he went to the sickroom. He bent over the fringe of the bed, speaking softly to the aged woman. At first, Mrs. Garner was unable to recognize her distinguished son. But an hour later she responded to him, whispering faintly and nodding her head.

Every member of the Garner family was near the aged woman's bedside, save her daughter-in law, Mrs. Jolly Garner, who had to stay at her home in Uvalde to care for her mother who is also ill.

SEVEN MINES SUMMON 600 MEN TO WORK

New Hope for Return of Prosperity In Ohio Coal Fields Seen

PEACE NOW REIGNS

Governor White's Settlement Is Approved

ATHENS, Sept. 19.—Wheels of the coal business started spinning today in the southern Ohio coal fields following a meeting at Murray City yesterday when local union delegates voted overwhelmingly to end the seven-months' strike.

Seven mines re-opened at once this morning, calling 600 men back to work, leading operators said after a survey of the entire field. By their vote of 72 to 24 at Murray City to ratify Governor White's settlement programs the union delegates executed the final stroke necessary to bring peace.

Two hundred men answered the whistle of the Buckingham Coal Company's Congo mine this morning and a similar number turned out to end the strike at the Ohio No. 1 mine of the Essex Coal Co. The Luhrig and Kimberly mines re-opened with 25 men on hand at each. Clean-up operations were started at the Sunday Creek Coal Company's 10X mine at Arbaton, and at its Salem Hollow and Carbondale mines.

The Rendville No. 9 mine put 100 new men to work and at the Sunday Creek Mine No. 6 at Millfield the road was lined with 100 applicants for jobs.

PROSPERITY SEEN

The promise of prosperity was held out to the mining section for the first time in many months as approximately 6,000 men employed will be put back to work in the Hocking, Crooksville and Cambridge fields, receiving an annual payroll of $4,000,000.

Operators all over the southern Ohio field conferred with officials today about plans for re-opening. The principal mines will be re-opened one by one as the market picks up. With the beginning of autumn, most of the strikers will have been called back to their jobs, which they left last January when the United Mine Workers' union announced a strike.

Recent reductions in coal freight rates, ordered by the state utilities commission, are expected to help the business in great measure. Operators see a possibility of eventual wage boosts for miners as a result.

He caught up a bucket of what he thought was water and dashed it over her, only to discover to his horror that the pail contained gasoline.

JAIL SUSPECTS IN BANK THEFT

Two New Lexington Men Questioned; One Wounded Trying To Get Away.

NEW LEXINGTON, Sept. 19.—Captured after a gun battle during which one was wounded, two suspects were to be questioned by Union-co officials here today in connection with the daring $10,000 robbery last week of the Richwood Banking Co., at Richwood, O.

The two suspects, who gave their names as Joseph Helwig, 26, of New Lexington, and Louis Vernon, 29, were seized last night by Perry-co authorities who trapped them as they were driving away from a restaurant in Junction City near here.

ONE WOUNDED

Helwig attempted to shoot his way to liberty, officials said. He was felled, however, by a bullet from an officer's gun which struck him in the left leg.

Lodged in jail here, Helwig and Vernon were to be questioned by Union-co officials regarding the Richwood robbery.

Suspicion was directed against the pair when Theodore Gordon, Junction City marshal, recognized their automobile as fitting the description of the one used by the bandits who held up the Richwood bank.

Gordon notified Sheriff Cliff Wilson, who rushed to Junction City immediately with a deputy, Clyde Marshall. They arrived just as the two suspects were preparing to drive away.

Blocking the suspect's automobile with thei rmachine, the officers got out of the car. Helwig turned and ran, firing two shots at the officers. Neither found a mark and Wilson and Marshall returned the fire. One of the shots struck Helwig in the left leg. Vernor offered no resistance.

WIFE QUESTIONED

Also in the car were Vernon's brother, Arthur, the latter's wife and their three small children. Arthur and his wife were questioned by the authorities and released.

Sheriff Wilson said he discovered a set of Michigan automobile license plates and a revolver in the suspected automobile. Both Vernon and Helwig were carrying revolvers.

The two suspects, according to Sheriff Wilson, have served prison sentences in Salt Lake City, Utah.

MANY DRUNKS HELD

Mayor Kept Busy Handing Out Sentences

Courts of the city were being kept busy Monday with a trial beginning in Judge Joseph W. Adkins' court in the statutory case of the State against Newell McNeal of Williamsport, several persons arrested for intoxication, one man cited for driving with no lights and another in jail for stealing a basket of potatoes.

The McNeal case, scheduled to begin at 9 a. m., was delayed until 1 p. m. because of the funeral of Frederick L. Fickardt. The long task of obtaining a jury suitable to both sides was to begin at that time. Judge Adkins Monday morning notified J. M. Borror and W. D. Heiskell, the jury commission, to be prepared to draw more names for jury duty as the panel was expected to be exhausted. Each side will have four peremptory challenges after the box has been filled.

McNeal was indicted on information furnished the grand jury by Margaret Pontius of Deercreek-twp. She with her father, Sam Pontius, and Dr. Glen D. Sheets have been subpoenaed by the state as witnesses. Besides Mr. McNeal the defene, conducted by Tom A. Renick and C. A. Weldon, has called Harry F. Dunlap.

E. L. Crist represents the state.

The wreck occurred last night when the special train crashed into a line of box cars standing on the rails of the Illinois Ceneral freight yard just north of here.

Militia Patrols Kentucky Town After 2 Deaths

Ancient Feud Breaks Out With Commonwealth Attorney Slain

KILLERS GET AWAY

Another Killed, Two Hurt In Bloody Fray

MANCHESTER, Ky., Sept. 19.—Twenty-five soldiers of the Kentucky National Guard patrolled the streets of this town today in the wake of a fresh outbreak in an ancient feud which brought death to two men and left two others wounded.

Authorities feared renewed violence as a consequence of the killing of Commonwealth Attorney Frank H. Baker, 39, and John Brock, 42, whose home was in Cincinnati, but who was a former resident of Leslie-co, Kentucky.

In the blaze of gunfire which flashed from inside the county courthouse the commonwealth attorney's uncle, Wiley Baker, 62, and Frank Young, 45, were wounded.

KILLERS ESCAPE

Sheriff's deputies were scouring the countryside in a hunt for the assassins who were seen running out of the courthouse after a

CITY TO GET BUS SERVICE

Chamber of Commerce Receives Notice; Company to Charge Ten Cents.

Through the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce, residents of Circleville now may enjoy intra-city transportation on Valley Public Service Co. busses.

Mack Parrett, Jr., secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, received notice Monday from H. A. Cryder, general manager of the Valley Public Service Co., that effective at once bus drivers would accept city passengers in Circleville for which a fare of 10 cents would be charged. The fare was formerly 25 cents.

The transportation will include carrying passengers to various points up and down Route 23 in Circleville, a part of their regular route.

COMMISSIONERS TO STUDY RESIGNATION

The county commissioners, Monday, were to take up the matter of selecting a successor to Rev. L. D. Young, pastor of the Church of the Brethren, Logan-st, who resigned as chairmen of Pickaway-co's unemployment committee last Monday.

Rev. Young's duties as head of the relief committee ceased Saturday. In his resignation he claimed that contractors refused to cooperate with him in placing men at work.

FIREMEN CALLED

The fire department answered a call to the Root grocery, W. Ohio-st, at 7:45 p. m. Saturday when a pile of kindling in the basement became ignited. The flames burned the under part of the floor but did little or no damage.

Firemen were called to the N. Scioto-st dump a few minutes before the Root store call.

FIVE DIE IN BANDIT FIGHT

Another Peace Officer Dies Monday; Lone Survivor of Gang Sought.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Sept. 19.—With the death today of Hunt Flippen, Claremore deputy sheriff, shot in yesterday's gun battle between members of the notorious Carlisle gang and officers, posses resumed their search for Jim Benge, remaining uncaptured member of the bandit group.

Ky Carlisle, leader of the gang and his companion, Troy Love, and Special Deputy Sheriff Andrew McGinnis, were slain in the exchange of bullets yesterday. Webster Reece, a deputy, and Bud McLain, a member of the gang, died in a previous encounter Saturday.

Carlisle, Love and Benge were charged in murder warrants with the slaying on Braggs' Mountain, Sept. 2 of Mrs. Susie Sharp.

FISCHER DIVORCE

Judge Adkins granted a divorce Saturday to Mrs. Helen Frances Fischer of Buffalo, from Frank Fischer of this city. The divorce was granted upon Mrs. Fischer's charge of gross neglect of duty which was a cross-petition answer to Mr. Fischer's charge of extreme cruelty filed in July.

Mr. Fischer did not appear in court to answer the cross-petition of his wife.

A property settlement was agreed upon out of court and by a similar agreement each parent will have half-time custody of their son, Lee Fischer. The child is now four years old, and for the last year and a half has been in the home of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. Stevenson of Ashville.

The Fischers were married in Chicago on April 28, 1927, since which time Mr. Fischer has been service manager of the William Hengerer Co., department store of Buffalo. He will make his future home in Chicago.

Mrs. Fischer was represented by August W. Weber of Columbus, and Mr. Fischer by C. A. Leist of this city and John P. Knight of Cleveland.

OHIO BANK IS ROBBED TODAY

Village Near Urbana Is Scene of Holdup; Only $500 Reported Gone.

URBANA, Sept. 19.—An eighteen year old bandit and two robber companions today held up John Thompson, president of the bank of North Lewisburg at North Lewisburg, O., northwest of here, rifled the bank of $500, and escaped in an automobile.

Thompson was alone in the bank when the robbers entered. He was overpowered and forced to lie face downward on the floor. The bandits enforced their command with the help of revolvers.

The automobile in which the two bandits made their getaway was a green coupe. Thompson reported. It carried license tag D-28290, which was issued in the Green county automobile club at Xenia, according to authorities.

The bandits headed toward Urbana on state highway No. 275. Sheriff E. A. Biggert ordered all roads in the section scoured, but at a late hour this morning no trace of the bandits had been found.

Thompson described one of the bandits as a youth about 18 years old. He was "rather short and very thin," and was dressed in working clothes. His companion was a man of about 30 or 35 years of age, ordinary height and build.

ARREST ATTORNEY

Arthur L. Rowe, Columbus attorney, is to appear before Mayor B. T. Hedges Tuesday afternoon to answer to a charge of reckless driving.

He was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell when he drove through the left side of the N. & W. bridge, north of this city. Rowe was traveling south, bound for Jackson where he is trying a suit.

Logan Elm Fund Interest Is High

Renewed interest in the drive for $900 to rebuild the Logan Elm was observed here Monday with several contributions received. The Herald with the Ohio State Journal and the Chillicothe Scioto Gazette are conducting the campaign to rehabilitate the tree.

One of the contributions received, $7.50, was from the Pickaway-twp centralized school collected from pupils and members of the faculty. The check was turned over to The Herald by Lester E. Seitz, superintendent of the school.

M. E. CLASS AIDS

A check for $5 was received, Monday, from the Circleville Chamber of Commerce following action of the board of directors. Another $5 collection was from the Men's Bible class of the First Methodist Episcopal church.

The Ebenezer Social Circle, comprised of Pickaway-twp women, voted a $5 contribution although the money has not yet been received, and the Logan Elm grange this week is expected to make a contribution.

The amount collected by The Herald, Monday noon had reached the $60 mark. The largest single contribution was from Miss Elizabeth Ruggles of Santa Monica, Calif., who sent $25 to The Herald.

The total amount now being held by the Ohio State Journal, including $48.50 from the Scioto Gazette, and not counting the money The Herald now has, totalled $560 Sunday evening.

Garner Wins "Death Race" With Mother

Democratic Nominee Drops All Plans As Mother Nears Death

DETROIT, Tex., Sept. 19.—Winner of a race against death, Speaker John N. Garner today remained in constant attendance at the bedside of his aged mother, Mrs. Sarah Jane Garner, critically ill in her home.

The 82-year-old mother of the Democratic vice-presidential nominee was in a state bordering on coma and her physicians expected the end momentarily. Early today the doctors announced their patient was "gradually sinking."

Speaker Garner, dropping all plans for a campaign speaking tour to rush to his mother's bedside from Washington, arrived here late yesterday. Immediately he went to the sickroom. He bent over the fringe of the bed, speaking softly to the aged woman. At first, Mrs. Garner was unable to recognize her distinguished son. But an hour later she responded to him, whispering faintly and nodding her head.

Every member of the Garner family was near the aged woman's bedside, save her daughter-in law, Mrs. Jolly Garner, who had to stay at her home in Ulvalde to care for her mother who is also ill.

SEVEN MINES SUMMON 600 MEN TO WORK

New Hope for Return of Prosperity In Ohio Coal Fields Seen

PEACE NOW REIGNS

Governor White's Settlement Is Approved

ATHENS, Sept. 19.—Wheels of the coal business started spinning today in the southern Ohio coal fields following a meeting at Murray City yesterday when local union delegates voted overwhelmingly to end the seven-months' strike.

Seven mines re-opened at once this morning, calling 600 men back to work, leading operators said after a survey of the entire field. By their vote of 72 to 24 at Murray City to ratify Governor George White's settlement program the union delegates executed the final stroke necessary to bring peace.

Two hundred men answered the whistle of the Buckingham Coal Company's Congo mine this morning and a similar number turned out to end the strike at the Ohio No. 1 mine of the Essex Coal Co. The Luhrig and Kimberly mines re-opened with 25 men on hand at each. Clean-up operations were started at the Sunday Creek Coal Company's 10X mine at Arbiston, and at its Salem Hollow and Carbondale mines.

The Rendville No. 9 mine put 100 new men to work and at the Sunday Creek Mine No. 6 at Millfield the road was lined with 100 applicants for jobs.

PROSPERITY SEEN

The promise of prosperity was held out to the mining section for the first time in many months. Approximately 6,000 men eventually will be put back to work in the Hocking, Crooksville and Pomeroy fields, receiving an annual payroll of $4,000,000.

Operators all over the southern Ohio field conferred with advisers today about plans for re-opening. The principal mines will be re-opened one by one as the market picks up. With the beginning of autumn, most of the strikers will have been called back to their jobs, which they left last February when the United Mine Workers' union announced a strike.

Recent reductions in coal freight rates, ordered by the state utilities commission, are expected to help the business in great measure. Operators see a possibility of eventual wage boosts for miners as a result.

NEW MARK MADE IN SPEED BOAT

ALGONAC, Mich., Sept. 19. — Gar Wood today drove the Miss America X at an unofficial speed of 126.09 statute miles per hour, the greatest speed at which man has ever traveled on water.

The giant hydroplane attained this amazing mark as Wood was warming up her four 12-cylinder motors on the St. Clair river preparatory to an assault upon the world speed record.

The present record, held by Kaye Don of England, is 119.75 miles per hour.

Swearingen and Brunner On Job

Each day from now on until Pumpkin Show, Oct. 5, 6, 7, and 8, The Herald will endeavor to print a short article concerning one phase or another of the annual show. These articles are for the purpose of acquainting the general public with the big event and its operation.

Apples, peaches, pears, grapes, plums, quinces and any other kind of fruit will be in charge of James Swearingen in the annual Pumpkin Show. Any person who has good looking fruit, grown in Pickaway-co, should bring it to the Pumpkin Show.

Potatoes, yams, turnips, onions, radishes, carrots, cabbage, celery, beets, peppers, tomatoes and beans are under Fred B. Brunner's supervision.

CAN YOU PASS THE BUYER'S BLINDFOLD TEST ? ?

CAN you make a list of the things which you need today, go out and buy them at the first store which you run across that handles them, and be sure that your shopping has been done both efficiently and economically?

If you can you have passed the blindfold test for buyers. But most women have discovered that efficient and economical buying can't be done the blindfold way.

And they have discovered that the best way to remove the blindfold is to peruse carefully the advertisements which appear in The Herald to find out where the things they want are offered and what prices are being asked. They have found that buying on the basis of the shopping news offered in the advertisements in this paper saves time, energy and money.

IF YOU HAVE BEEN BUYING blindfold try the results when the blindfold is removed by looking through The Herald today and making a list of the places and prices of the things you want.

Country Club's Tourney Nears Its Conclusion

Hopes of three Pickaway Country club golfers to win the clubs championship went a-glimmering over the weekend when quarter-final matches were played.

C. T. Gilmore continued his spectacular play by defeating Walter Nelson 7 up and 6 to go. John D. Bragg turned back one of the threats of the tourney, Dr. O. W. House of Williamsport, winning by a 4 up and 2 to go count. Mack Mader eked out a 2 up and 1 to go margin from Joe P. Noecker in an interesting contest.

The fourth quarter-final match was started Saturday afternoon with C. R. Barnhart holding a two hole margin over Tom O. Gilliland on nine holes. The other nine will be played this week.

Gilmore will meet Bragg in a feture match for the right to enter the finals and Mader will tangle with the winner of the Barnhart-Gilliland contest.

SPARTANS WIN BY 33 TO 0 SCORE

After a slow start, Portsmouth's Spartan grid team won its first contest of the season Sunday, taking the Grand Rapids, Mich., team a semipro outfit, into camp by a 33-0 score.

The Sparts failed to score in the first period being stopped on the one-yard line twice, but they broke through to score twice in the second, once in the third and twice in the fourth periods.

The first touchdown came on a crash by Gustowsky, Oklahoma U. halfback, while the other four were scored on long runs, one by Clark, another by Presnell and two by Lumpkin. Both Clark's and one of Lumpkin's runs were for 60 yards.

The play of Al Nesser, 47-year-old Columbus gridder, at end for Grand Rapids was one of the highlights of the contest.

Next Sunday the Spartans will meet the New York Giants, with Red Cagle, Shipwreck Kelly, Hoge Workman and other stars.

RED BIRDS SPLIT

Columbus's Red Birds split a double header with the Louisville Colonels Sunday, losing the first game 7-4 and winning the second 8-5.

Paul Dean was the losing pitcher while Bob Osborn was the victorious moundsman.

Joseph Stalin, Dictator of Soviet Union, May Suffer Fate He Meted Out to Leon Trotsky. Failure as Pilot of Five-Year Plan Cited.

According to observers of the political situation in Soviet Russia, Joseph Stalin, the supreme dictator who holds virtual powers of life and death over 150,000,000 persons, is slated for the oblivion into which he sent Leon Trotsky, former Commissar of War and co-founder with Nickolai Lenin of the New Russia. Reports of the impending upheaval reached London following the discovery of a plot to assassinate the dictator in Moscow. It is said that 120 persons, including many high officers of the Red Army, were arrested. One of those allegedly implicated in the plot, Commissar of War Voroshiloff, is said to be the new leader of the opposition against Stalin, who will, in the event of the latter being ousted, grasp the dictatorship. Stalin's fall is said to be due to the unsatisfactory manner in which he has piloted the voyage of the good ship Five-Year Plan. The Soviet dream is not progressing in the blaze of glory which was confidently expected, and erstwhile supporters of Stalin are beginning to believe that Leon Trotsky knew whereof he spoke when he accused Stalin of mismanagement of the entire affair. Trotsky was exiled for his pains, but since then, as he wandered about Europe and Asia, virtually a man without a country, he has continued to criticize Stalin's methods. So far, the only Red leader who has succeeded in retaining his popularity is Nickolai Lenin, who lies in his great sarcophagus in Moscow's Red Square, the idol of millions of worshipping Russians. But had he lived, it is probable he would have suffered the fate that is Trotsky's today and which may be Stalin's tomorrow.

White Is Lauded By Bishop Coach

Howard White, son of Troy W. White, this city, and a graduate of and former athlete at Chillicothe high school, is the brightest hope of Coach George Gauthier's Ohio Wesleyan university football team this fall. A "story" coming from the Delaware campus Monday morning says the following concerning White who is a sophomore halfback:

"Every coach likes to have on his team a halfback with the apparent ability to break up a ball game at almost any given minute, and Howard White of Circleville may fill this post on the Wesleyan eleven.

"Fast and elusive, Whitey has that deceptive hip motion which makes good tacklers look bad, when they attempt to bring him down. If Gauthier can get his team to the point of efficient blocking so that this speed merchant can get into the open, the rival secondaries are going to have some busy afternoons. White picks up momentum rapidly and is able to thread his way through the second team like a will of the wisp. It will not be so easy against adversaries of equal caliber, but he will bear watching at all times.

"When Whitey is not worrying opponents, John Turley may wake them up from their trance. Turley is a Delaware product, who weighs around the 180 and handles himself like an old war horse. For a youngster he picks his holes in an excellent manner, is sturdy on defense, blocks fairly well and is the best forward passer to wear a Wesleyan uniform in years. He did not perform in an aerial way for the writer, but Gauthier vouches for the fact that he can really toss the overhead throws, although he needs considerable polishing in the execution of the air attack."

Local fans will be given their first chance to see White in the Wesleyan uniform when he performs against Wilmington college next Saturday at Delaware in the team's first game of the season. The following Saturday they face Ohio State university.

CUBS AND PIRATES IN CRUCIAL GAMES

NEW YORK, Sept. 19. — The Cubs and Pirates will begin their allegedly "crucial" series in Chicago tomorrow with Chicago needing two victories to clinch the National league pennant and only one triumph to gain at least a tie. The Bruins, with six games remaining on their schedule, are six games in front of the Cubs, who have eight more games to play.

Both clubs wound up their eastern invasion under high pressure yesterday, the Pirates downing the Giants twice and the Cubs battling gamely for fifteen innings before they were able to nose out Cincinnati, 4 to 3.

COLLEGIANS WIN

COLUMBUS, Sept. 19.—Trout Collegians, last year's semi-pro state football champs, got away to a good start for the 1932 laurel hunting campaign today by defeating the Dayton A. C. eleven here yesterday afternoon, 19 to 0.

In another pro gridiron tilt, the Mendel Tailors defeated another local aggregation, the Livingston Adds, 19 to 6.

ZUPPKE NEEDS GOOD LINEMEN

Gil Berry, Pete Yanuskus Are Back; Backfield Men Are Made Linemen.

EDITOR'S NOTE:—This is the third of a series on 1932 Big Ten conference football teams.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Sept. 19. — Bob Zuppke hits the nail on the head when he describes his 1932 edition of the fighting Illini. He says:

"We have a little more hope."

"Illinois failed to win a Big Ten game last season for the first time in Zuppke's career.

If Zuppke can dig up a line comparable to those he had in his last winning days of 1927, 1928 and 1929, we'd give the Illini a good chance to cause trouble in conference ranks.

So far as the backfield is concerned, Gil Berry, captain, is expected to be the ace. Gil was about three-fourths of the team last season. A big help will be the return of Pete Yanuskus, who was ineligible last season after being elected captain. Pete is the lad who ran 80 yards against Army in 1929.

When it comes to the line, Zuppke is so desperate for talent that he is converting backs into guards, tackles and center.

Charles Bennis, a 175-pound sophomore who came in as a halfback, is being used at center. Bob Horsley, who played quarterback last year, is being groomed as an end. Robert Hladek and Elbert Gragg, two sophomores who had aspirations to become great halfbacks, are now playing guard.

Ack Bodman at guard, and Fred and Ivan Schustak at end, are about the only veterans being considered seriously for line positions.

Bob May, a 200-pounder who won a letter in 1929 but did not play last year, is also back, and slated for one of the tackle berths.

Alfalfa hay acreage in Ohio has been gradually growing larger. In 1907 the acreage was not more than 15,000 but it was spread into every county save two. Now it is estimated at 200,000. However, this area is only about 6 per cent of the entire area devoted to hay in Ohio.

poor. He cited the 7,509 sacks of flour which have been distributed to the county's poor, and numerous other donations.

Supt. Howard Rhude of New Holland, gave a fine talk on "How Can We Improve Our Attendance at School." He said attendance could be improved by teachers visiting homes superintendents checking with the teachers and making the pupils enjoy school.

"ABREAST OF TIMES"

"Teachers can keep abreast of modern methods and may learn more about research- work which is certainly beneficial," Supt. George McDowell of Jackson-twp remarked in speaking on "Why Should Teachers and Superintendents Avail Themselves of Extension Work."

A program of physical education under the direction of Mrs. Stella Morrison of Ashville, was declared by those in attendance to be one of the finest that has been given in the county. The pupils of the Ashville schools co-operated to put on the program.

A vote of thanks was extended to the board of education of the Ashville-Harrison-twp school district, to Supt. Carl Higley and the teachers and pupils of Ashville for the splendid manner in which the meeting was held.

The next meeting will be held at Williamsport, Saturday, Nov. 5, at which Hon. Vernon M. Riegel, former director of education and now legislative agent for the Ohio Education Association, will speak.

score or more bullets had been fired. In the excitement which followed the shooting the killers escaped.

Apparently the bloody attack had been carefully planned. Wiley Baker was entertaining 18 friends at his home, directly across the street from the courthouse. Commonwealth Attorney Baker was a guest. Early Sunday morning he stepped out of the house into the street and a fusilade from the courthouse rained death upon him. Hearing the noise of the shooting, Brock ran out of the house, to be followed by the host and Young. Another chorus of bullets greeted them, killing Brock and wounding the other two men.

LINKED IN FEUD

The Baker family, it was recalled, was linked with the so-called White-Bailey three-cornered mountain feud which had its inception during Civil War days and has exacted a heavy toll of lives.

Immediately after yesterday's shooting Circuit Judge William Lewis requested the troops and Gov. Ruby Laffoon complied.

Manchester has been particularly afflicted with feud outbreaks. Last month troops patrolled the streets while murder trials resulting from feud slayings were in progress.

THIS picture will bring back memories to a lot of people of the days when the boys went marching away with flags flying and bands playing.

Chesterfields were very popular with those men who went overseas. They were "rookies" then. They're "old vets" today. And that milder, satisfying Chesterfield flavor is still their steady choice . . . after fifteen years!

It was mildness that first attracted smokers to Chesterfield. And it's mildness and better taste that is winning new friends for Chesterfield today . . . all over the country.

"THAT LITTLE GAME" — One of the Ladies Reneged

Country Club's Tourney Nears Its Conclusion

Hopes of three Pickaway Country club golfers to win the clubs championship went a-glimmering over the weekend when quarter-final matches were played.

C. T. Gilmore continued his spectacular play by defeating Walter Nelson 7 up and 6 to go. John D. Bragg turned back one of the threats of the tourney, Dr. O. W. House of Williamsport, winning by a 4 up and 2 to go count. Mack Mader eked out a 2 up and 1 to go margin from Joe P. Noecker in an interesting contest.

The fourth quarter-final match was started Saturday afternoon with C. R. Barnhart holding a two hole margin over Tom O. Gilliland on nine holes. The other nine will be played this week.

Gilmore will meet Bragg in a feture match for the right to enter the finals and Mader will tangle with the winner of the Barnhart-Gilliland contest.

SPARTANS WIN BY 33 TO 0 SCORE

After a slow start, Portsmouth's Spartan grid team won its first contest of the season Sunday, taking the Grand Rapids, Mich., team a semipro outfit, into camp by a 33-0 score.

The Sparts failed to score in the first period being stopped on the one-yard line twice, but they broke through to score twice in the second, once in the third and twice in the fourth periods.

The first touchdown came on a crash by Gustowsky, Oklahoma U's halfback, while the other four were scored on long runs, one by Clark, another by Presnell and two by Lumpkin. Both Clark's and one of Lumpkin's runs were for 60 yards.

The play of Al Nesser, 47-year-old Columbus gridder, at end for Grand Rapids was one of the highlights of the contest.

Next Sunday the Spartans will meet the New York Giants, with Red Cagle, Shipwreck Kelly, Hoge Workman and other stars.

RED BIRDS SPLIT

Columbus's Red Birds split a double header with the Louisville Colonels Sunday, losing the first game 7-4 and winning the second 8-5.

Paul Dean was the losing pitcher while Bob Osborn was the victorious moundsman.

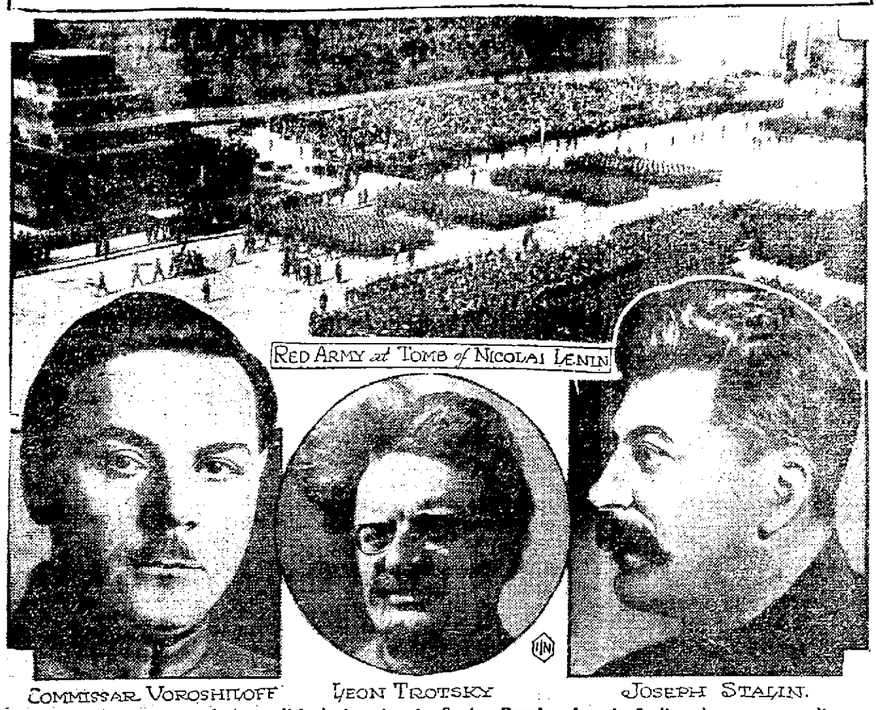
Rule of Russia's Red Caesar Tottering

* * * * * * * * *

Joseph Stalin, Dictator of Soviet Union, May Suffer Fate He Meted Out to Leon Trotsky. Failure as Pilot of Five-Year Plan Cited.



COMMISSAR VOROSHILOFF — LEON TROTSKY — JOSEPH STALIN.

According to observers of the political situation in Soviet Russia, Joseph Stalin, the supreme dictator who holds virtual powers of life and death over 150,000,000 persons, is slated for the oblivion into which he sent Leon Trotsky, former Commissar of War and co-founder with Nickolai Lenin of the New Russia. Reports of the impending upheaval reached London following the discovery of a plot to assassinate the dictator in Moscow. It is said that 120 persons, including many high officers of the Red Army, were arrested. One of those allegedly implicated in the plot, Commissar of War Voroshiloff, is said to be the new leader of the opposition against Stalin, who will, in the event of the latter being ousted, grasp the dictatorship. Stalin's fall is said to be due to the unsatisfactory manner in which he has piloted the voyage of the good ship Five-Year Plan. The Soviet dream is not progressing in the blaze of glory which was confidently expected, and erstwhile supporters of Stalin are beginning to believe that Leon Trotsky knew whereof he spoke when he accused Stalin of mismanagement of the entire affair. Trotsky was exiled for his pains, but since then, as he wandered about Europe and Asia, virtually a man without a country, he has continued to criticize Stalin's methods. So far, the only Red leader who has succeeded in retaining his popularity is Nickolai Lenin, who lies in his great sarcophagus in Moscow's Red Square, the idol of millions of worshipping Russians. But had he lived, it is probable he would have suffered the fate that is Trotsky's today and which may be Stalin's tomorrow.

White Is Lauded By Bishop Coach

Howard White, son of Troy W. White, this city, and a graduate of and former athlete at Chillicothe high school, is the brightest hope of Coach George Gauthier's Ohio Wesleyan university football team this fall. A "story" coming from the Delaware campus Monday morning says the following concerning White who is a sophomore halfback:

"Every coach likes to have on his team a halfback with the apparent ability to break up a ball game at almost any given minute, and Howard White of Circleville may fill this post on the Wesleyan eleven.

"Fast and elusive, Whitey has that deceptive hip motion which makes good tacklers look bad when they attempt to bring him down. If Gauthier can get his team to the point of efficient blocking so that this speed merchant can get into the open, the rival secondaries are going to have some busy afternoons. White picks up momentum rapidly and is able to thread his way through the second team like a will of the wisp. It will not be so easy against adversaries of equal caliber, but he will bear watching at all times.

"When Whitey is not worrying opponents, John Turley may wake them up from their trance. Turley is a Delaware product, who weighs around the 180 and handles himself like an old war horse. For a youngster he picks his holes in an excellent manner, is sturdy on defense, blocks fairly well and is the best forward passer to wear a Wesleyan uniform in years. He did not perform in an aerial way for the writer, but Gauthier vouches for the fact that he can really toss the overhead throws, although he needs considerable polishing in the execution of the air attack."

Local fans will be given their first chance to see White in the Wesleyan uniform when he performs against Wilmington college next Saturday at Delaware in the team's first game of the season. The following Saturday they face Ohio State university.

CUBS AND PIRATES IN CRUCIAL GAMES

NEW YORK, Sept. 19. — The Cubs and Pirates will begin their allegedly "crucial" series in Chicago tomorrow with Chicago needing two victories to clinch the National league pennant and only one triumph to gain at least a tie. The Bruins, with six games remaining on their schedule, are six games in front of the Cubs, who have eight more games to play.

Both clubs wound up their eastern invasion under high pressure yesterday, the Pirates downing the Giants twice and the Cubs battling gamely for fifteen innings before they were able to nose out Cincinnati, 4 to 3.

COLLEGIANS WIN

COLUMBUS, Sept. 19.—Trout Collegians, last year's semi-pro state football champs, got away to a good start for the 1932 laurel hunting campaign today by defeating the Dayton A. C. eleven here yesterday afternoon, 19 to 0.

In another pro gridiron tilt, the Mendel Tailors defeated another local aggregation, the Livingston Adds, 19 to 6.

ZUPPKE NEEDS GOOD LINEMEN

Gil Berry, Pete Yanuskus Are Back; Backfield Men Are Made Linemen.

EDITOR'S NOTE:—This is the third of a series on 1932 Big Ten conference football teams.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Sept. 19. — Bob Zuppke hits the nail on the head when he describes his 1932 edition of the fighting Illini. He says:

"We have a little more hope."

"Illinois failed to win a Big Ten game last season for the first time in Zuppke's career.

If Zuppke can dig up a line comparable to those he had in his last winning days of 1927, 1928 and 1929, we'd give the Illini a good chance to cause trouble in conference ranks.

So far as the backfield is concerned, Gil Berry, captain, is expected to be the ace. Gil was about three-fourths of the team last season. A big help will be the return of Pete Yanuskus, who was ineligible last season after being elected captain. Pete is the lad who ran 80 yards against Army in 1929.

When it comes to the line, Zuppke is so desperate for talent that he is converting backs into guards, tackles and center.

Charles Bennis, a 175-pound sophomore who came in as a halfback, is being used at center. Bob Horsley, who played quarterback last year, is being groomed as an end. Robert Hladek and Elbert Gragg, two sophomores who had aspirations to become great halfbacks, are now playing guard.

Ack Bodman at guard, and Fred and Ivan Schustak at end, are about the only veterans being considered seriously for line positions.

Bob May, a 200-pounder who won a letter in 1929 but did not play last year, is also back, and slated for one of the tackle berths.

Alfalfa hay acreage in Ohio has been gradually growing larger. In 1907 the acreage was not more than 15,000 but it was spread into every county save two. Now it is estimated at 260,000. However, this area is only about 5 per cent of the entire area devoted to hay in Ohio.

poor. He cited the 7,509 sacks of flour which have been distributed to the county's poor, and numerous other donations.

Supt. Howard Rhude of New Holland, gave a fine talk on "How Can We Improve Our Attendance at School." He said attendance could be improved by teachers visiting homes superintendents checking with the teachers and making the pupils enjoy school.

"ABREAST OF TIMES"

"Teachers can keep abreast of modern methods and may learn more about research work which is certainly beneficial," Supt. George McDowell of Jackson-twp remarked in speaking on "Why Should Teachers and Superintendents Avail Themselves of Extension Work."

A program of physical education under the direction of Mrs. Stella Morrison of Ashville, was declared by those in attendance to be one of the finest that has been given in the county. The pupils of the Ashville schools co-operated to put on the program.

A vote of thanks was extended to the board of education of the Ashville-Harrison-twp school district, to Supt. Carl Higley and the teachers and pupils of Ashville for the splendid manner in which the meeting was held.

CAN YOU PASS THE BUYER'S BLINDFOLD TEST ? ?

CAN you make a list of the things which you need today, go out and buy them at the first store which you run across that handles them, and be sure that your shopping has been done both efficiently and economically?

If you can you have passed the blindfold test for buyers. But most women have discovered that efficient and economical buying can't be done the blindfold way.

And they have discovered that the best way to remove the blindfold is to peruse carefully the advertisements which appear in The Herald to find out where the things they want are offered and what prices are being asked. They have found that buying on the basis of the shopping news offered in the advertisements in this paper saves time, energy and money.

IF YOU HAVE BEEN BUYING blindfold try the results when the blindfold is removed by looking through The Herald today and making a list of the places and prices of the things you want.

Gandhi's Plan to Starve Self Not New As Political Weapon

* * * * * *

Mahatma's Hunger Campaign to Protest British Electoral Plan Has Many Parallels in History. Irish Mayor MacSwiney World-Famous Case.

MAYOR TERRENCE MACSWINEY MAHATMA GANDHI. (INS)

Courting death by starvation as a political weapon of the oppressed is not by any means new in history. Mahatma Gandhi, India's spiritual leader, in his determination to starve himself to death as a protest against the new British electoral plan for India, has seized upon a means of passive protest which dates back at least as far as the Spanish Inquisition. Many of the oppressed in medieval Spain undertook voluntary starvation in protest against the tyranny that prevailed in those bygone days. More recently, the self-martyrdom of Lord Mayor Terrence MacSwiney of Cork attracted the attention and sympathy of the entire world to the Irish cause. MacSwiney, sentenced to a two-year prison sentence for sedition against the British crown, went on hunger strike and steadfastly refused to touch food until his death after 74 days of suffering in Brixton Prison, London. Gandhi plans to start his self-starvation program if Premier Ramsay MacDonald does not rescind the electoral plan to which the Mahatma takes exception. However, MacDonald asserts that Gandhi would deprive the 60,000,000 "untouchables" he is supposed to champion of representation in the Indian Legislature and is determined to go ahead, regardless of the Mahatma's threats.

LISTS DIRECTIONS FOR PLUM CANNING

Fruit May Be Canned With or Without Skins, Claim Specialists.

Canning plums for winter consumption is a relatively simple matter, according to nutrition specialists for the agricultural extension service at the Ohio State university.

As a general rule plums are canned with the skins on, they say. The fruit, however, may be skinned, halved, and pitted as in the case of peaches. If they are canned with the skins on, it is best to prick each plum to prevent bursting of the skins in the cooking process

In the can-cooked process, the specialists suggest that the plums be packed in hot jars as tightly as possible The jar then is filled to one-half inch of the top with syrup which is made either with 1 cup of sugar to 3 cups of water, or 1 cup of sugar to 2 cups of water, depending upon the tartness of the fruit. A knife blade is inserted several times to release air bubbles

The jars are partially sealed and processed 15 minutes in a water bath or in steam. After processing the jars are removed, tested for leaks, and placed right side up to cool.

If the plums are canned by the open kettle method, the specialists say it is a good idea to cook them in a syrup the same as that used in the can-cooked process. They are cooked until tender, placed with a clean spoon into a hot sterilized jar, the jar is filled to overflowing, the rubber and top adjusted, and sealed immediately They then are tested for leaks and placed right side up to cool

Rail Wages

FORTUNATELY for all parties concerned, and that includes the public, the decision of the railroad executives on a twenty per cent reduction in the basix wate scale for all railroad workers cannot be put into effect without mediation and arbitration. The question is too important for hasty action.

There will be three sides to this argument—the railroad managements or owners, the workers and the people. And when it comes up for mediation all sides will be considered with the hope of arriving at a decision that will be the best for all.

The position of the managements is that the railroads cannot carry on with the present wage and salary scale unless their business picks up materially. At the present cost of operation, of which labor is a major item, they cannot compete with the motor trucks, bus and automobile. Their contention is that in the wage cut railroad labor as well as management will find salvation.

Labor will counter with the argument that it acceted a temprcrary 10 per cent cut last February on the agreement that the old scale would be restored next February and that a permanent reduction of 20 per cent will deprive it of a living wage. It denies that the old scale is suicidal.

Then there is the public to be considered. Another wage cut for so large a group of workers would materially reduce national consumption at a time when the country is in dire need of buying power. Every factory, business, farm and transporation system in the land would suffer. Even the railroads would be hurt. That is why the general public has a stake in the game.

Abolishing K. P.

AS if enough of our time-honored traditions have not already passed into limbo the regular army contemplates the abandonment of "kitchen police" duty at posts, forts and barracks within the Unted States. The plan under consideration is to employ civilian help to man the mop and paring knife.

Here, however, is a tradition that will pass, if it does, unmourned, through perhaps not unsung. Nary a regular army man will shed a tear over its bier. For "K. P." is a sickening thing.

Despised of men as it is, where will "kitchen police" duty find an effective substitute? You military psychologists, every sergeant challenges you to name something just as good for what it is good for.

The combination of a mess sergeant, a mop and a buck private's own knowledge that he couldn't be fired and he couldn't quit achieved miracles of disillusionment. For many raw recruits it has been a baptism in real soldiering.

"K. P." never hurt anybody, but neither did it ever do anybody any good in his own estimation. It is fine discipline and no one likes discipline.

Perhaps the high command will abandon the idea. If not before it experiments a little, then after it does experiment a little.

Comic Opera Hostilities

GREAT Britain and Spain once went to war over a man's ear. Paraguay and Bolivia have not even as good an excuse for going to war. Though they claim it is feeling over a boundary dispute it is plainly and simply a feeling for war.

When Captain Jenkins' ear led to hostilities between England and Spain 193 years ago there was no other way to end international disputes except upon the field of battle. Today that is one place where they never are settled permanently.

Both nations are itching for a fight. They don't want peace and seem to be tickled to death that an absurd boundary dispute gives them something to shoot and shout about. With chips on their shoulders and both eager to knock the other's off they are well matched.

Several nations have offered to mediate the controversy that the question may be settled peacefully and fairly, but the disputants will have none of it and resent this outside interference.

Perhaps Paraguay and Bolivia are not aware of it but they are acting like two belligerent schoolboys in the eyes of the rest of the world. They both need to be given a good spanking and sent to bed without supper.

If it were not for the petty squabbling of the little nations, this would be a peaceful world most of the time.

"MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY"

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY COVICI-FRIEDE INC., DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Following the receipt of a death threat, Lola Carewe, known as "The Night Club Lady", is mysteriously slain in her penthouse apartment at 3 a. m. New Year's. Dr. Hugh Baldwin reports death due to heart failure. The only clue to the murderer is a medical laboratory specimen box outside Lola's window. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt attaches importance to the young man whose photograph is found in Lola's room, and whose identity Lola had refused to reveal beyond his first name, "Basil". At the mention of "Basil", Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother, becomes hysterical. It is known that Lola quarreled with Guy Everett and Vincent Rowland, a lawyer, over investments. Eunice, the maid, confessed she was employed by Everett to report the goings on in the apartment. The mystery deepens with the finding of the body of Christine Quires, Lola's guest. Christine had been killed before Lola and her body hidden until an opportune moment arrived for the murderer to place it, soaking wet, in Lola's room. The findings are similar to those in Lola's case except that Christine's neck was bruised after death. Everett, Christine's last escort, claims he left her at the apartment elevator at midnight New Year's Eve, and then went for a ride on the Motor Parkway, alone, arriving home after 3 a. m. Mrs. Carewe informs Colt that Christine lived with a brother, Edgar, in Rochester, and was to receive her inheritance shortly. Lola's room is vacuum cleaned and the dust particles sent to Professor Luckner for analysis. Colt sends to the medical examiner a hypodermic syringe taken from Baldwin's bag and a strap for analysis, also a strand of Christine's hair found near Lola's window. The Commissioner orders Basil's picture telephotoed to M. Dupont, head of the Paris Police. It is learned that Edward Quires received a telegram New Year's Eve and left for New York. Paper and ink identical with the death threat materials are found under Eunice's mattress. Everett's Motor Parkway alibi is shattered.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

IN the blear light that began to filter through Colt's study, we looked at each other in wonderment. Where were we going? The established fact that Guy Everett had lied, and about such an important matter, did seem significant. But Colt was not ready to discuss the case. Instead he thoughtfully consulted his watch, while he told me that Gavin had phoned; the portrait of Basil was being cabled by telephoto three thousand miles to France.

It was now five o'clock in the morning of the new year's first day.

"Ten o'clock in Paris," the chief reflected aloud. "Monsieur le Préfect must certainly be at his office."

And such is the service which the Bell Telephone Company puts at the disposal of all police officials that in five minutes Thatcher Colt and M. Dupont, Préfect of the Parisian Sûreté, were talking on the telephone — with myself taking notes on an extension.

"Hello——"

"Allo——"

"Monsieur Dupont?"

"Mais oui. Qui est là?"

"Thatcher Colt."

"Ah, Monsieur Colt, mon cher ami! Comment allez-vous?"

"C'est la même petite vie, Monsieur Dupont, et vous?"

"Ah, c'est la même chose, Monsieur Colt. Can I help you?"

Here the Paris police chief switched suddenly to English out of compliment to his transatlantic confrère and much to my relief.

"I am tracing the history of a woman — and a man," explained Colt. "First I want all the facts that you can get about the life in Paris or anywhere else of a woman now living here under the name of Lola Carewe, also known as Rosita Jorga."

"Ah, oui!" And M. Dupont spelled out the names carefully.

"Will you also see if the Roumanian police have a history of a man supposed to be her father—Jorga, for a long time a political exile in London."

"I will do that, too, mon cher ami! Anything else?"

"Much more," chuckled Thatcher Colt and went on to explain how the portrait of a young man, first name Basil, family name unknown, was being forwarded to the Préfect by telephoto. M. Dupont gasped. Such impatient persons, these Americans!

"And what I am most earnestly hoping you will see your way clear to do," pursued Colt warmly, "is to have one of your agents call on one Marcel Grandon, 60, Avenue D'Iena—in the Etoile district, I assume—show him the telephoto portrait and try to get it identified. Perhaps your people may know him—it is barely possible the young man has a police record."

"We will do our best, Mr. Colt!"

"Angels could do no more, M. Dupont! A thousand thanks!"

"Pas du tout, Monsieur Colt."

"Au revoir."

"Au revoir."

As he hung up the receiver, Colt cast a rogue's grin at Dougherty.

"We're getting nearer to something," he said, "with our picture of Basil!"

"Smart as a whip and all that," granted Dougherty. "but I still don't see his connection with this case."

"We'll debate that presently," promised Colt. "Meanwhile, Tony, will you please now arouse Mr. Vincent Rowland from his innocent slumbers and tell him I would like to speak to him on the telephone?"

In this announcement Dougherty displayed a lively interest.

"I was much surprised, Thatcher," he revealed, "when you put a tail on Rowland. Surely you don't suspect that old chin-whisker of anything serious?"

Having relighted his pipe, Colt replied:

"I do regard the eminent Mr. Rowland with a somewhat jaundiced eye, Dougherty. Truth is, I was watching him in the Mayfair dining-room last night, just before Lola sent us her note, inviting us into this singular business. He didn't wish Lola to write that note. I watched him trying to dissuade her. I don't know whether I ever told you or not, but in my youth I mastered lip-reading. I can listen to distant conversations by watching mouths. I saw him implore her to have nothing to do with me in this matter. Perhaps he feared having his name mixed up in a police case. Quite reasonably, too. Yet when we went over, he took the credit for inviting us."

"By George!" glowered Dougherty. "That is curious!"

"Mr. Rowland is on the telephone," I announced.

"Forgive me, Mr. Rowland," began Colt urbanely. "I am sorry to break into your sleep. But there are one or two points the police have to clear up. What's that? Oh, there is no doubt about it now—plain, unadulterated murder. Yes! Well, it's very kind of you to be ready to help. I want to ask you two questions. Once, when you and I were talking in Miss Carewe's living-room last night, you started to tell me something that sounded significant. You said, 'There is one curious circumstance which, maybe, I shouldn't tell ——' Remember that? No, you didn't finish it—Miss Carewe interrupted us."

At the other end of the wire, Vincent Rowland was hemming nervously.

"I can't imagine what that was," he protested. "Let me think."

"I don't want to bring you downtown at this late hour," hinted Thatcher Colt. "But it is so important——"

"I remember now — perfectly!" crowed Vincent Rowland. "I don't think it amounts to anything much at all. But for whatever it is worth, here it is. I have repeatedly warned Lola against her association with an actor named Guy Everett. In the first place I don't think the fellow is altogether sane. In the second place he was foolish enough to take Lola's advice on investments, and he lost his savings—every dollar he had in the world. In the third place he wanted to marry her, and she didn't care a fig for him—not a fig! He was jealous of all her friends, including such a harmless one as myself. He blamed Christine Quires for turning Lola against him—he told me so. And he was especially jealous of Doctor Baldwin. I just thought that Guy Everett would bear watching — that's all."

"And you couldn't remember what it was you had meant to tell me," chided Colt sarcastically.

"I'm a sleepy and tired old man," fretted Rowland. "Now is there anything else, Mr. Colt?"

There was a moment of silence, before Colt propounded the next question.

"Mr. Rowland—why did you and Lola quarrel before you left the apartment this evening?"

"Quarrel?"

The word was repeated like a squeal.

"Quarrel!" squeaked Vincent Rowland for a second time. "We did not quarrel. We had a few words, yes — anyone who stays around Lola Carewe very long will have words with her. She is—was—a high-tempered and tempestuous character, Mr. Colt. But we had no quarrel—we went out on a party together!"

"Well, what did you have words about?"

"About Guy Everett — and who else? I told her she was a fool to be advising men in their investments. She has friends in some investment company downtown and sends them customers. I told her it was a dangerous game. I believe the Federal Government is going to send her friends to Atlanta—but I am sure Lola thinks—thought—they are all right. And I warned her that Guy Everett was a ruined man and might try to strike back. And she told me to mind my own damned business—which I wish I had!"

"What is the name of this company to which she sends her wealthy friends for investment?"

"The Rock-Ribbed Securities Corporation."

"Thanks, Mr. Rowland. I will see you later in the day!"

"Is that so?" groaned Vincent Rowland, as he hung up his receiver.

"That all sounds convincing enough," remarked Colt and Dougherty nodded sagely. He was about to continue when Colt reached for the telephone. This time it was to instruct Flynn about looking up the Rock-Ribbed Securities Corporation. This conversation finished, the chief sat back silently and lit his pipe.

I knew that the time had come to examine the evidence. But only a brief review was possible in Colt's present mood; there was too much yet to be learned.

"Get out your notebook, Tony," requested the chief, "and take down our discussion during the next five minutes."

"At last we are going to find out just where we are at!" rejoiced Dougherty with an owlish stare of his blue eyes. The District Attorney set down an empty glass, ran a big hand through his red curls and cleared his enormous throat impressively.

"I am inclined to believe, Thatcher, that you are ignoring the obvious in this case — looking for subtleties that do not exist. It is all much simpler than you make out!"

Colt smiled amiably and entreated the District Attorney to state his conclusions.

Don't Let Health Neglect Give Children Low Marks

National Survey Shows Six Principal Causes of Sickness Causing Backwardness in School Pupils. All Can Be Forestalled by Examination.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

BEFORE school begins, or soon after, the children should be inspected. This is the time to take your youngsters to the doctor for physical examination. All physical defects such as enlarged tonsils and adenoids, impaired eyesight or hearing, or dental decay, should be given attention, and there should be vaccination against smallpox and inoculations against diphtheria and other infectious diseases.

Dr. Copeland

During the winter months a child may be stricken with a severe attack of tonsilitis. Immediate operation is never advised because of the infection, high fever and the lowered health of the child. The mother is cautioned about the child's health and advised to have the tonsils and adenoids removed at an appropriate time. Perhaps you attended to this during the summer. If you did, the operation did not necessitate any loss of time from school.

Six Frequent Ailments

Unfortunately, many mothers follow advice during the acute illness, but forget about the operation. The child returns to school in the Fall and is exposed to infections and colds. He repeats his sad experience of the previous winter and, in addition to losing time from school, injures his general health.

In a recent survey on the health of the school child, made by the United States Public Health Service, six conditions were most frequently found as the cause of sickness. They were decayed teeth, defective vision, diseased tonsils, enlarged glands, ear trouble and enlarged thyroid glands. There is no doubt that most of the time lost from school because of these ailments could have been prevented. These physical defects would have been discovered if the children had been examined by a doctor during the vacation.

But there is no use crying over spilled milk. If it wasn't done then, it can be done now.

A great deal has been written about the value and necessity of periodic health examinations for adults, but too little emphasis has been placed upon the importance of periodic health examinations for children. Unlike adults, children, cannot interpret pain. Often they do not tell their parents when they have pain, and it requires a careful examination to determine their condition.

Consult Your Physician

Many constitutional defects are overlooked and neglected because of thoughtlessness or carelessness. Consult with your physician and have him correct all physical defects. Your child will make better progress in school if he is in good health.

I know how busy the average mother is. She has a multitude of things to look after, particularly in this time of limited income and general distress. I am not saying this today to add to her misery. Far from it! My thought is to remind her that, with all her worries she mustn't forget the vital necessity of having the children inspected now and then.

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

"Frankenstine" and "Dracula" in all of their weirdness and gruesome scenes don't measure up to "Doctor X," current showing at the Cliftona Theatre, according to the opinions of persons who saw the Picture Sunday evening. It is also playing Monday and Tuesday.

She story in short: Six malicious murders are committed within a close range of time. Suspicion is thrown upon Dr. Xavier's academy as the brain cell of each of the victims has been pierced with a knife found only in his laboratory. The police wish to press an investigation. Dr. X asks that he be allowed to make his own investigation. To avoid publicity he takes the other surgeons of his academy, his daughter and members of his household staff to Cliff Manor, a deserted spot on Long Island. However Lee Tracy, a news-reporter for the Daily World, is on his heels every minute, and later enacts the hero role by killing the killer.

Dr. X begins the investigation, which in itself is one of the most tense and nerve-racking scenes to be put on the screen. When a maid, whom he had engaged to play a part in the investigation becomes ill, the doctor's beautiful daughter, Fay Wray, volunteers. A Dr. Wells, a member of his own surgical research staff who had gone to Africa to study Cannibalism, is discovered to be the killer. In a horrible scuffle, Lee Tracy, the news-man overpowers the "moon killer" and sends him to his death by hurling him from a high window in the manor.

This attempted description doesn't tell anything about the gruesome scenes. The picture must be seen to be appreciated. A Paramount news reel, a bouncing ball cartoon and another short comedy are included in the excellent program.

DEPRESSION BRINGS INCREASE IN CALLS FOR MEDICAL HELP

COLUMBUS, Sept. 19.—Calls for medical attention for the poor of Ohio have increased greatly because of the depression it is shown by the annual report of Dr. E. J. Gordon, director of dispensaries of the college of medicine, Ohio State university.

The number of patient-visitors to the university's medical dispensaries, Dr. Gordon reports, has doubled since 1929. For the year 1931-1932 the number rose to 53,147.

"The original intent of the dispensary was as a teaching unit to demonstrate to students accepted methods of recognizing various diseases and their treatment," Dean J. H. J. Upham, of the college, explains. "The present quarters provide for about 25,000 visits a year; hence, it may be seen that the emergency is taxing the facilities of the dispensary to the utmost."

College of medicine officials estimate that the university is providing the poor of Ohio with a high grade medical service worth more than $25,000 annually. This clinic is the only free clinic of its kind in central Ohio. It has a staff of more than 50 persons, all members of the college faculty.

26 WORKMEN IN COUNTY INJURED

Industrial Commission Releases Figures Showing Month Comparisons.

While the 89 industrial fatalities reported to the Industrial Commission in August is four more than the record for the preceding month, it is 30 less than for August 1931, it is shown by figures announced by Supt. Thos. P. Kearns of the Division of Safety and Hygiene.

A similiar increase was shown in non-fatal accidents, the 11,677 reported being 720 more than in July, but 3,908 under the August 1931 record. Similarly, the time loss increased by 48,205 days, but it was 199,549 days less than in August of last year.

The five principal causes of accidents were: Handling objects, 2,136; machinery, 1,652; hand tools 1,328; falls of persons, 1,293; stepping upon or striking against objects, 1,136.

Industrial workers in Pickaway-co reported 26 injuries, of which none were fatal, none caused permanent partial disability, 13 over seven days lost time, two seven days or less and 11 medical cases causing no time loss. The time lost by county workers as a result of accidents was 348 days.

The Daily Horoscope

Monday, Sept. 19, 1932

According to astrology, the morning hours favor all affairs requiring the quickness of thought. The perceptive faculties of the mind will be quickened causing people to be receptive, business-like, and responsive to new ideas.

Optimism prevails today with a tendency to read and the newspapers are likely to have articles appear relating to satisfactory relations in the sport field. Many important contracts and agreements may be opened today. Much precision and order in the schools and the regular routine of studies should be carried on most successfully.

The morning is favorable for correspondence looking after accounts, and all matters connected with students, younger people, reporters, publishers, bookkeepers, statioiers, distributors and advertisers.

Jupiter and Neptune in good aspect during the month of September, increase the inspirational and devotional aspirations, therefore special efforts are likely to be made by various religious organizations to draw people to their services. In the business world this angle of the planets tends toward the mind speculative and successful in money matters. There should be much success in dealing with foods, chemistry, canning and the dairy products.

Under this rule of the stars, agreements may be successfully made; contracts signed, and also presented for publication; it is a good day for transacting business with strangers and new customers, it is also an auspicious time for writing letters and answering advertisements.

In London, England, there is a sign, read as favorable to the employment situation as well as to the Navy.

In New York state there is expected less publicity, conflict and scandal from this time on.

Children born on this day have a certain magnetism which draws others to them; they have good initiative and in later years should go into business for themselves.

Louis Kossuth, Hungarian patroit, was born on this day. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include William Robertson, 1721, noted Scottish historian; William B. Astor, 1792, American capitalist.

Rail Wages

FORTUNATELY for all parties concerned, and that includes the public, the decision of the railroad executives on a twenty per cent reduction in the basix wate scale for all railroad workers cannot be put into effect without mediation and arbitration. The question is too important for hasty action.

There will be three sides to this argument—the railroad managements or owners, the workers and the people. And when it comes up for mediation all sides will be considered with the hope of arriving at a decision that will be the best for all.

The position of the managements is that the railroads cannot carry on with the present wage and salary scale unless their business picks up materially. At the present cost of operation, of which labor is a major item, they cannot compete with the motor trucks, bus and automobile. Their contention is that in the wage cut railroad labor as well as management will find salvation.

Labor will counter with the argument that it acceted a temprcrary 10 per cent cut last February on the agreement that the old scale would be restored next February and that a permanent reduction of 20 per cent will deprive it of a living wage. It denies that the old scale is suicidal.

Then there is the public to be considered. Another wage cut for so large a group of workers would materially reduce national consumption at a time when the country is in dire need of buying power. Every factory, business, farm and transporation system in the land would suffer. Even the railroads would be hurt. That is why the general public has a stake in the game.

Abolishing K. P.

AS if enough of our time-honored traditions have not already passed into limbo the regular army contemplates the abandonment of "kitchen police" duty at posts, forts and barracks within the Unted States. The plan under consideration is to employ civilian help to man the mop and paring knife.

Here, however, is a tradition that will pass, if it does, unmourned, through perhaps not unsung. Nary a regular army man will shed a tear over its bier. For "K. P." is a sickening thing.

Despised of men as it is, where will "kitchen police" duty find an effective substitute? You military psychologists, every sergeant challenges you to name something just as good for what it is good for.

The combination of a mess sergeant, a mop and a buck private's own knowledge that he couldn't be fired and he couldn't quit achieved miracles of disillusionment. For many raw recruits it has been a baptism in real soldiering.

"K. P." never hurt anybody, but neither did it ever do anybody any good in his own estimation. It is fine discipline and no one likes discipline.

Perhaps the high command will abandon the idea. If not before it experiments a little, then after it does experiment a little.

Comic Opera Hostilities

GREAT Britain and Spain once went to war over a man's ear Paraguay and Bolivia have not even as good an excuse for going to war. Though they claim it is feeling over a boundary dispute it is plainly and simply a feeling for war.

When Captain Jenkins' ear led to hostilities between England and Spain 193 years ago there was no other way to end international disputes except upon the field of battle. Today that is one place where they never are settled permanently.

Both nations are itching for a fight. They don't want peace and seem to be tickled to death that an absurd boundary dispute gives them something to shoot and shout about. With chips on their shoulders and coin eager to knock the other's off they are well matched.

Several nations have offered to mediate the controversy, that the question may be settled peacefully and fairly, but the disputants will have none of it and resent this outside interference.

Perhaps Paraguay and Bolivia are not aware of it but they are acting like two belligerent schoolboys in the eyes of the rest of the world. They both need to be given a good spanking and sent to bed without supper.

If it were not for the petty squabbling of the little nations, this would be a peaceful world most of the time.

"MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY"

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT, 1931 BY COVICI-FRIEDE INC., DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Following the receipt of a death threat, Lola Carewe, known as "The Night Club Lady", is mysteriously slain in her penthouse apartment at 3 a. m. New Year's. Dr. Hugh Baldwin reports death due to heart failure. The only clue to the murderer is a medical laboratory specimen box outside Lola's window. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt attaches importance to the young man whose photograph is found in Lola's room, and whose identity Lola had refused to reveal beyond his first name, "Basil". At the mention of "Basil", Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother, becomes hysterical. It is known that Lola quarreled with Guy Everett and Vincent Rowland, a lawyer, over investments. Eunice, the maid, confessed she was employed by Everett to report the goings on in the apartment. The mystery deepens with the finding of the body of Christine Quires, Lola's guest. Christine had been killed before Lola and her body hidden until an opportune moment arrived for the murderer to place it, soaking wet, in Lola's room. The findings are similar to those in Lola's case except that Christine's neck was bruised after death. Everett, Christine's last escort, claims he left her at the apartment elevator at midnight New Year's Eve, and then went for a ride on the Motor Parkway, alone, arriving home after 3 a. m. Mrs. Carewe informs Colt that Christine lived with a brother, Edgar, in Rochester, and was to receive her inheritance shortly. Lola's room is vacuum cleaned and the dust particles sent to Professor Luckner for analysis. Colt sends to the medical examiner a hypodermic syringe taken from Baldwin's bag and a strap for analysis, also a strand of Christine's hair found near Lola's window. The Commissioner orders Basil's picture telephotoed to M Dupont, head of the Paris Police. It is learned that Edward Quires received a telegram New Year's Eve and left for New York. Paper and ink identical with the death threat materials are found under Eunice's mattress. Everett's Motor Parkway alibi is shattered.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

IN the blear light that began to filter through Colt's study, we looked at each other in wonderment. Where were we going? The established fact that Guy Everett had lied, and about such an important matter, did seem significant. But Colt was not ready to discuss the case. Instead he thoughtfully consulted his watch, while he told me that Gavin had phoned; the portrait of Basil was being cabled by telephoto three thousand miles to France.

It was now five o'clock in the morning of the new year's first day.

"Ten o'clock in Paris," the chief reflected aloud. "Monsieur le Préfect must certainly be at his office."

And such is the service which the Bell Telephone Company puts at the disposal of all police officials that in five minutes Thatcher Colt and M. Dupont, Préfect of the Parisian Sûreté, were talking on the telephone — with myself taking notes on an extension.

"Hello——"

"Allo——"

"Monsieur Dupont?"

"Mais oui. Qui est là?"

"Thatcher Colt."

"Ah, Monsieur Colt, mon cher ami! Comment allez-vous?"

"C'est la même petite vie, Monsieur Dupont, et vous?"

"Ah, c'est la même chose, Monsieur Colt. Can I help you?"

Here the Paris police chief switched suddenly to English out of compliment to his transatlantic confrère and much to my relief.

"I am tracing the history of a woman — and a man," explained Colt. "First I want all the facts that you can get about the life in Paris or anywhere else of a woman now living here under the name of Lola Carewe, also known as Rosita Jorga."

"Ah, oui!" And M. Dupont spelled out the names carefully.

"Will you also see if the Roumanian police have a history of a man supposed to be her father—Jorga, for a long time a political exile in London."

"I will do that, too, mon cher ami! Anything else?"

"Much more," chuckled Thatcher Colt and went on to explain how the portrait of a young man, first name Basil, family name unknown, was being forwarded to the Préfect by telephoto. M. Dupont gasped. Such impatient persons, these Americans!

"And what I am most earnestly hoping you will see your way clear to do," pursued Colt warmly, "is to have one of your agents call on one Marcel Grandon, 60, Avenue D'Iena—in the Etoile district, I assume—show him the telephoto portrait and try to get it identified. Perhaps your people may know him—it is barely possible the young man has a police record."

"We will do our best, Mr. Colt!"

"Angels could do no more, M. Dupont! A thousand thanks!"

"Pas du tout, Monsieur Colt."

"Au revoir."

"Au revoir."

As he hung up the receiver, Colt cast a rogue's grin at Dougherty.

"We're getting nearer to something," he said, "with our picture of Basil!"

"Smart as a whip and all that," granted Dougherty, "but I still don't see his connection with this case."

"We'll debate that presently," promised Colt. "Meanwhile, Tony, will you please now arouse Mr. Vincent Rowland from his innocent slumbers and tell him I would like to speak to him on the telephone?"

In this announcement Dougherty displayed a lively interest.

"I was much surprised, Thatcher," he revealed, "when you put a tail on Rowland. Surely you don't suspect that old chin-whisker of anything serious?"

Having relighted his pipe, Colt replied:

"I do regard the eminent Mr. Rowland with a somewhat jaundiced eye, Dougherty. Truth is, I was watching him in the Mayfair dining-room last night, just before Lola sent us her note, inviting us into this singular business. He didn't wish Lola to write that note. I watched him trying to dissuade her. I don't know whether I ever told you or not, but in my youth I mastered lip-reading. I can listen to distant conversations by watching mouths. I saw him implore her to have nothing to do with me in this matter. Perhaps he feared having his name mixed up in a police case. Quite reasonably, too. Yet when we went over, he took the credit for inviting us."

"By George!" glowered Dougherty. "That is curious!"

"Mr. Rowland is on the telephone," I announced.

"Forgive me, Mr. Rowland," began Colt urbanely. "I am sorry to break into your sleep. But there are one or two points the police have to clear up. What's that? Oh, there is no doubt about it now—plain, unadulterated murder. Yes! Well, it's very kind of you to be ready to help I want to ask you two questions. Once, when you and I were talking in Miss Carewe's living-room last night, you started to tell me something that sounded significant. You said, 'There is one curious circumstance which, maybe, I shouldn't tell ——' Remember that? No, you didn't finish it—Miss Carewe interrupted us."

At the other end of the wire, Vincent Rowland was hemming nervously.

"I can't imagine what that was," he protested. "Let me think."

"I don't want to bring you downtown at this late hour," hinted Thatcher Colt. "But it is so important——"

"I remember now — perfectly!" crowed Vincent Rowland. "I don't think it amounts to anything much at all. But for whatever it is worth, here it is. I have repeatedly warned Lola against her association with an actor named Guy Everett. In the first place I don't think the fellow is altogether sane. In the second place he was foolish enough to take Lola's advice on investments, and he lost his savings—every dollar he had in the world. In the third place he wanted to marry her, and she didn't care a fig for him—not a fig! He was jealous of all her friends, including such a harmless one as myself. He blamed Christine Quires for turning Lola against him—he told me so. And he was especially jealous of Doctor Baldwin. I just thought that Guy Everett would bear watching — that's all."

"And you couldn't remember what it was you had meant to tell me," chided Colt sarcastically.

"I'm a sleepy and tired old man," fretted Rowland. "Now is there anything else, Mr. Colt?"

There was a moment of silence, before Colt propounded the next question.

"Mr Rowland—why did you and Lola quarrel before you left the apartment this evening?"

"Quarrel?"

The word was repeated like a squeal.

"Quarrel!" squeaked Vincent Rowland for a second time. "We did not quarrel. We had a few words, yes — anyone who stays around Lola Carewe very long will have words with her. She is—was—a high-tempered and tempestuous character, Mr. Colt. But we had no quarrel—we went out on a party together!"

"Well, what did you have words about?"

"About Guy Everett — and who else? I told her she was a fool to be advising men in their investments. She has friends in some investment company downtown and sends them customers. I told her it was a dangerous game. I believe the Federal Government is going to send her friends to Atlanta—but I am sure Lola thinks—thought—they are all right. And I warned her that Guy Everett was a ruined man and might try to strike back. And she told me to mind my own damned business—which I wish I had!"

"What is the name of this company to which she sends her wealthy friends for investment?"

"The Rock-Ribbed Securities Corporation."

"Thanks, Mr. Rowland. I will see you later in the day!"

"Is that so?" groaned Vincent Rowland, as he hung up his receiver.

"That all sounds convincing enough," remarked Colt and Dougherty nodded sagely. He was about to continue when Colt reached for the telephone. This time it was to instruct Flynn about looking up the Rock-Ribbed Securities Corporation. This conversation finished, the chief sat back silently and lit his pipe.

I knew that the time had come to examine the evidence. But only a brief review was possible in Colt's present mood; there was too much yet to be learned.

"Get out your notebook, Tony," requested the chief, "and take down our discussion during the next five minutes."

"At last we are going to find out just where we are at!" rejoiced Dougherty with an owlish stare of his blue eyes. The District Attorney set down an empty glass, ran a big hand through his red curls and cleared his enormous throat impressively.

"I am inclined to believe, Thatcher, that you are ignoring the obvious in this case — looking for subtleties that do not exist. It is all much simpler than you make out!"

Colt smiled amiably and entreated the District Attorney to state his conclusions.

Don't Let Health Neglect Give Children Low Marks

National Survey Shows Six Principal Causes of Sickness Causing Backwardness in School Pupils. All Can Be Forestalled by Examination.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

BEFORE school begins, or soon after, the children should be inspected. This is the time to take your youngsters to the doctor for physical examination. All physical defects such as enlarged tonsils and adenoids, impaired eyesight or hearing, or dental decay, should be given attention, and there should be vaccination against smallpox and inoculations against diphtheria and other infectious diseases.

Dr. Copeland

During the winter months a child may be stricken with a severe attack of tonsilitis. Immediate operation is never advised because of the infection, high fever and the lowered health of the child. The mother is cautioned about the child's health and advised to have the tonsils and adenoids removed at an appropriate time. Perhaps you attended to this during the summer. If you did, the operation did not necessitate any loss of time from school.

Six Frequent Ailments

Unfortunately, many mothers follow advice during the acute illness, but forget about the operation. The child returns to school in the Fall and is exposed to infections and colds. He repeats his sad experience of the previous winter and, in addition to losing time from school, injures his general health.

In a recent survey on the health of the school child, made by the United States Public Health Service, six conditions were most frequently found as the cause of sickness. They were decayed teeth, defective vision, diseased tonsils, enlarged glands, ear trouble and enlarged thyroid glands. There is no doubt that most of the time lost from school because of these ailments could have been prevented. These physical defects would have been discovered if the children had been examined by a doctor during the vacation.

But there is no use crying over spilled milk. If it wasn't done then, it can be done now.

A great deal has been written about the value and necessity of periodic health examinations for adults, but too little emphasis has been placed upon the importance of periodic health examinations for children. Unlike adults, children cannot interpret pain. Often they do not tell their parents when they have pain, and it requires a careful examination to determine their condition.

Consult Your Physician

Many constitutional defects are overlooked and neglected because of thoughtlessness or carelessness. Consult with your physician and have him correct all physical defects. Your child will make better progress in school if he is in good health.

I know how busy the average mother is. She has a multitude of things to look after, particularly in this time of limited income and general distress. I am not saying this today to add to her misery. Far from it! My thought is to remind her that, with all her worries she mustn't forget the vital necessity of having the children inspected now and then.

DEPRESSION BRINGS INCREASE IN CALLS FOR MEDICAL HELP

COLUMBUS, Sept. 19.—Calls for medical attention for the poor of Ohio have increased greatly because of the depression it is shown by the annual report of Dr. E. J. Gordon, director of dispensaries of the college of medicine, Ohio State university.

The number of patient-visitors to the university's medical dispensaries, Dr. Gordon reports, has doubled since 1929. For the year 1931-1932 the number rose to 53,147.

"The original intent of the dispensary was as a teaching unit to demonstrate to students accepted methods of recognizing various diseases and their treatment," Dean J. H. J. Upham, of the college, explains. "The present quarters provide for about 25,000 visits a year; hence, it may be seen that the emergency is taxing the facilities of the dispensary to the utmost."

College of medicine officials estimate that the university is providing the poor of Ohio with a high grade medical service worth more than $25,000 annually. This clinic is the only free clinic of its kind in central Ohio. It has a staff of more than 50 persons, all members of the college faculty.

26 WORKMEN IN COUNTY INJURED

Industrial Commission Releases Figures Showing Month Comparisons.

While the 89 industrial fatalities reported to the Industrial Commission in August is four more than the record for the preceding month, it is 30 less than for August 1931, it is shown by figures announced by Supt. Thos. P. Kearns of the Division of Safety and Hygiene.

A similiar increase was shown in non-fatal accidents, the 11,677 reported being 720 more than in Juiy, but 3,908 under the August 1931 record. Similarly, the time loss increased by 48,205 days, but it was 199,549 days less than in August of last year.

The five principal causes of accidents were: Handling objects, 2,136, machinery, 1,652; hand tools 1,328; falls of persons, 1,293; stepping upon or striking against objects, 1,136.

Industrial workers in Pickaway-co reported 26 injuries, of which none were fatal, none caused permanent partial disability, 13 over seven days lost time, two seven days or less and 11 medical cases causing no time loss. The time lost by county workers as a result of accidents was 348 days.

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

"Frankenstine" and "Dracula" in all of their weirdness and gruesome scenes don't measure up to "Doctor X," current showing at the Cliftona Theatre according to the opinions of persons who saw the Picture Sunday evening. It is also playing Monday and Tuesday

She story in short: Six malicious murders are committed within a close range of time. Suspicion is thrown upon Dr. Xavier's academy as the brain cell of each of the victims has been pierced with a knife found only in his laboratory. The police wish to press an investigation. Dr. X asks that he be allowed to make his own investigation. To avoid publicity he takes the other surgeons of his academy, his daughter and members of his household staff to Cliff Manor, a deserted spot on Long Island. However Lee Tracy, a news-reporter for the Daily World, is on his heels every minute, and later enacts the hero role by killing the killer.

Dr. X begins the investigation, which in itself is one of the most tense and nerve-racking scenes to be put on the screen. When a maid, whom he had engaged to play a part in the investigation becomes all the doctor's beautiful daughter, Fay Wray, volunteers. A Dr Wells, a member of his own surgical research staff who had gone to Africa to study Cannibalism, is discovered to be the killer In a horrible scuffle, Lee Tracy, the news-man overpowers the "moon killer" and sends him to his death by hurling him from a high window in the manor

This attempted description doesn't tell anything about the gruesome scenes The picture must be seen to be appreciated A Paramount news reel, a bouncing ball cartoon and another short comedy are included in the excellent program.

CHICAGO HAS LARGEST PATROL WAGON

CHICAGO—The Chicago police department has received the largest patrol wagon in the world—one that will accommodate 60 prisoners. It was built at a cost of $6,500.

The new "Black Maria" is modern, in addition to being commodious. It is equipped with an air cooling system. The entrance is near the drivers' seat, enabling officers to sit in front of the car and keep a watchful eye on the prisoners.

Gandhi's Plan to Starve Self Not New As Political Weapon

* * * * * *

Mahatma's Hunger Campaign to Protest British Electoral Plan Has Many Parallels in History. Irish Mayor MacSwiney World-Famous Case.

MAYOR TERRENCE MACSWINEY MAHATMA GANDHI. UN

Courting death by starvation as a political weapon of the oppressed is not by any means new in history. Mahatma Gandhi, India's spiritual leader, in his determination to starve himself to death as a protest against the new British electoral plan for India, has seized upon a means of passive protest which dates back at least as far as the Spanish Inquisition. Many of the oppressed in medieval Spain undertook voluntary starvation in protest against the tyranny that prevailed in those bygone days. More recently, the self-martyrdom of Lord Mayor Terrence MacSwiney of Cork attracted the attention and sympathy of the entire world to the Irish cause. MacSwiney, sentenced to a two-year prison sentence for sedition against the British crown, went on hunger strike and steadfastly refused to touch food until his death after 74 days of suffering in Brixton Prison, London. Gandhi plans to start his self-starvation program if Premier Ramsay MacDonald does not rescind the electoral plan to which the Mahatma takes exception. However, MacDonald asserts that Gandhi would deprive the 60,000,000 "untouchables" he is supposed to champion of representation in the Indian Legislature and is determined to go ahead, regardless of the Mahatma's threats.

LISTS DIRECTIONS FOR PLUM CANNING

Fruit May Be Canned With or Without Skins, Claim Specialists.

Canning plums for winter consumption is a relatively simple matter, according to nutrition specialists for the agricultural extension service at the Ohio State university.

As a general rule plums are canned with the skins on, they say. The fruit, however, may be skinned, halved, and pitted as in the case of peaches. If they are canned with the skins on, it is best to prick each plum to prevent bursting of the skins in the cooking process.

In the can-cooked process, the specialists suggest that the plums be packed in hot jars as tightly as possible. The jar then is filled to one-half inch of the top with syrup which is made either with 1 cup of sugar to 3 cups of water, or 1 cup of sugar to 2 cups of water, depending upon the tartness of the fruit. A knife blade is inserted several times to release air bubbles.

The jars are partially sealed and processed 15 minutes in a water bath or in steam. After processing the jars are removed, tested for leaks, and placed right side up to cool.

If the plums are canned by the open kettle method, the specialists say it is a good idea to cook them in a syrup the same as that used in the can-cooked process. They are cooked until tender, placed with a clean spoon into a hot sterilized jar, the jar is filled to overflowing, the rubber and top adjusted, and sealed immediately. They then are tested for leaks and placed right side up to cool.

'Henry's Wedding' Promises Laughs From Start; Presented Two Days

Action, thrills, comedy—many, many words could be used to describe "Henry's Wedding" to be staged Thursday and Friday at the Grand Theatre under the auspices of the Circleville Athletic Club. It is being directed by Miss Barbara Kennedy of the Universal Producing Co.

A synopsis of the production gives an excellent idea of what the show is to be like.

"Henry's Wedding" is a comedy of a bachelor bridegroom of 55 getting married for the first time to a widow of 49, who has been twice married. This in itself brings enough comical and funny situations to keep the crowd in an uproar from start to finish. But what makes the situation even more hilarious is the fact that Jack, Uncle Henry's nephew, planned to get married on the day of the show, and collect on the next day, his 25th birthday. $100,000 from his grandfather's will.

KIDNAP IN PLOT

However the sudden announcement on the part of Uncle Henry of his marriage on the same day cuts Jack out of $100,000 and gives it to Uncle Henry. Jack immediately, with his boy friends, Ted and Harris, attempt to stop the wedding of Uncle Henry. Persuasion fails and they turn to the attempt to kidnap him, and from here the comical situations begin. O'Flaherty, the hard-boiled detective, and Mugs, his assistant, are called in to help solve the mystery and they give a lot of amusement to the show.

Eliza, the negro cook, and her lazy husband, Rastus, afford a lot of comedy. One of the big events is when Uncle Henry, hiding in an ash can, is the victim of a tremendous gasoline explosion and comes out black as coal, and is immediately mistaken for Rastus. Eliza's husband, and is forced to do the housework, instead of receiving praises and compliments of his friends as a bridegroom.

The missing bridegroom causes many funny and comical situations, and the boys who attempt to kidnap him, are shaking with fear through the entire time due to the fact that they are afraid they will go to the penitentiary for their crime.

ANOTHER ROMANCE

Jack attempts to rush the wedding through seeking to get married before his Uncle, and when this fails he decides to postpone the wedding and his fiance fails to understand all his peculiar actions and decides not to be married at all. Things go from bad to worse and it seems that there will be no marriage, but during all this time a love affair develops between the old maid, Susan Christopher, the jilted lover of Uncle Henry, and the family attorney, Lawyer Brown. They decide to be married and at the last minute join the happy circle and make it a triple wedding. However, after a long series of difficulties things completely iron themselves out and all are able to get married and Jack is able to receive the money due to the fact that Samantha Green, Henry's fiancee, becomes a lifelong friend of Mary Smithfield, Jack's fiancee, because both of their ancestors came over on the May-flower together.

There are several outstanding group settings, among them the lodge meeting of the Colored Brethren and Sistern of the Mystic Shrine who attempt to find Uncle Henry by talking to the spirits. They sing a number of spiritual songs.

The Beaus and Belles of 1890 at a 1940 wedding prove the laugh hit of the show. There are also a number of beautifully costumed girls' choruses.

The show is an outstanding comedy. Everybody laughs at "Henry's Wedding."

OUTLINE ECONOMIES FOR PUBLIC SCHOOL

Economies in the cost of operating rural schools are best made after studying all cost items, states H. H. Davis, professor of school administration at the Ohio State university. Such a study should be made with a view of saving money on operating charges with as little salary cutting as possible and with the least damage to the school program.

School costs often times may be reduced by slashing transportation costs, by reducing supply costs, by cutting costs through the closing of schools, and by increasing class sizes in high schools, he said in a series of recent discussions conducted by the agricultural extension service at the state university on the farm night program which is broadcast from the state-owned radio station WEAO every Monday night from 8 to 10.

DISTRICTS OVERLAP

In pointing out how transportation costs may be reduced, Davis declared that many districts have found that their bus routes are too short, overlap too much, and force too much driving with empty buses. By planning the routes more carefully and by using larger buses, they can reduce the number and eliminate much waste driving. The purchase of gas and oil in large quantities and the employment of a mechanic to keep the school fleet of buses in good condition also have brought real economies in some counties. Many Ohio counties now have as many as 75 to 100 school bus routes. If this whole group could be run as one system under county administration much more could be saved.

Several counties, Davis asserted, have made substantial savings by combining purchases of supplies so as to get the advantages and saving of larger purchases. Some boards have found that they can save money by closing small one-room schools and transporting the children to other schools where they can be cared for at no additional cost. However, the success of this plan depends upon getting transportation at a cost less than the cost of running the small school.

again, the Ohio National Guard prepared to get on the move. Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson expected to send all but a few observers home from Nelsonville, where the militia has been guarding against strike outbreaks.

Merchants and business men all over southern Ohio are cheered by the end of the strike. In the Hocking Valley region, in particular, business is dependent upon the operations of the coal mines.

The strike peace accepted by the local unions yesterday provides for a minimum wage of 38 cents a ton for machine-mined coal and $3.28 for day labor, and stipulates that union members will not be discriminated against by operators in re-opening their mines.

The governor's peace plan is to be in effect until next May. Before any more pay cuts can be ordered by the operators, detailed plans must be submitted to the governor 30 days in advance. He will then investigate the necessity of such action.

OUTLINE ECONOMIES FOR PUBLIC SCHOOL

Economies in the cost of operating rural schools are best made after studying all cost items, states H. H. Davis, professor of school administration at the Ohio State university. Such a study should be made with a view of saving money on operating charges with as little salary cutting as possible and with the least damage to the school program.

School costs often times may be reduced by slashing transportation costs, by reducing supply costs, by cutting costs through the closing of schools, and by increasing class sizes in high schools, he said in a series of recent discussions conducted by the agricultural extension service at the state university on the farm night program which is broadcast from the state-owned radio station WEAO every Monday night from 8 to 10.

DISTRICTS OVERLAP

In pointing out how transportation costs may be reduced, Davis declared that many districts have found that their bus routes are too short, overlap too much, and force too much driving with empty buses. By planning the routes more carefully and by using larger buses, they can reduce the number and eliminate much waste driving. The purchase of gas and oil in large quantities and the employment of a mechanic to keep the school fleet of buses in good condition also have brought real economies in some counties. Many Ohio counties now have as many as 75 to 100 school bus routes. If this whole group could be run as one system under county administration much more could be saved.

Several counties, Davis asserted, have made substantial savings by combining purchases of supplies so as to get the advantages and saving of larger purchases. Some boards have found that they can save money by closing small one-room schools and transporting the children to other schools where they can be cared for at no additional cost. However, the success of this plan depends upon getting transportation at a cost less than the cost of running the small school.

again, the Ohio National Guard prepared to get on the move. Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson expected to send all but a few observers home from Nelsonville, where the militia has been guarding against strike outbreaks.

Merchants and business men all over southern Ohio are cheered by the end of the strike. In the Hocking Valley region, in particular, business is dependent upon the operations of the coal mines.

The strike peace accepted by the local unions yesterday provides for a minimum wage of 38 cents a ton for machine-mined coal and $3.28 for day labor, and stipulates that union members will not be discriminated against by operators in re-opening their mines.

The governor's peace plan is to be in effect until next May. Before any more pay cuts can be ordered by the operators, detailed plans must be submitted to the governor 30 days in advance. He will then investigate the necessity of such action.

'Henry's Wedding' Promises Laughs From Start; Presented Two Days

Action, thrills, comedy—many, many words could be used to describe "Henry's Wedding" to be staged Thursday and Friday at the Grand Theatre under the auspices of the Circleville Athletic Club. It is being directed by Miss Barbara Kennedy of the Universal Producing Co.

A synopsis of the production gives an excellent idea of what the show is to be like.

"Henry's Wedding" is a comedy of a bachelor bridegroom of 55 getting married for the first time to a widow of 49, who has been twice married. This in itself brings enough comical and funny situations to keep the crowd in an uproar from start to finish. But what makes the situation even more hilarious is the fact that Jack, Uncle Henry's nephew, planned to get married on the day of the show, and collect on the next day, his 25th birthday, $100,000 from his grandfather's will.

KIDNAP IN PLOT

However the sudden announcement on the part of Uncle Henry of his marriage on the same day cuts Jack out of $100,000 and gives it to Uncle Henry. Jack immediately, with his boy friends, Ted and Harris, attempt to stop the wedding of Uncle Henry. Persuasion fails and they turn to the attempt to kidnap him, and from here the comical situations begin. O'Flaherty, the hard-boiled detective, and Mugs, his assistant, are called in to help solve the mystery and they give a lot of amusement to the show.

Eliza, the negro cook, and her lazy husband, Rastus, afford a lot of comedy. One of the big events is when Uncle Henry, hiding in an ash can, is the victim of a tremendous gasoline explosion and comes out black as coal, and is immediately mistaken for Rastus, Eliza's husband, and is forced to do the housework, instead of receiving praises and compliments of his friends as a bridegroom.

The missing bridegroom causes many funny and comical situations, and the boys who attempt to kidnap him, are shaking with fear through the entire time due to the fact that they are afraid they will go to the penitentiary for their crime.

ANOTHER ROMANCE

Jack attempts to rush the wedding through seeking to get married before his Uncle, and when this fails he decides to postpone the wedding and his fiance fails to understand all his peculiar actions and decides not to be married at all. Things go from bad to worse and it seems that there will be no marriage, but during all this time a love affair develops between the old maid, Susan Christopher, the jilted lover of Uncle Henry, and the family attorney, Lawyer Brown. They decide to be married and at the last minute join the happy circle and make it a triple wedding. However, after a long series of difficulties things completely iron themselves out and all are able to get married and Jack is able to receive the money due to the fact that Samantha Green, Henry's fiancee, becomes a lifelong friend of Mary Smithfield, Jack's fiancee, because both of their ancestors came over on the Mayflower together.

There are several outstanding group settings, among them the lodge meeting of the Colored Brethren and Sistern of the Mystic Shrine who attempt to find Uncle Henry by talking to the spirits. They sing a number of spiritual songs.

The Beaus and Belles of 1890 at a 1940 wedding prove the laugh hit of the show. There are also a number of beautifully costumed girls' choruses.

The show is an outstanding comedy. Everybody laughs at "Henry's Wedding."
